

News From OurDogHouse

2.6

February 27, 2006

Featured Product

Proud Pekingese Tote Bag
$16.99

In This Issue:

1. News At OurDogHouse
2. Do You Live With A Nervous Nellie?
3. Dog-Gone Funny!
4. Dog-Gone Helpful Link

1. News At OurDogHouse

What's New!

We are as busy as ever adding new sayings and products to our already huge product line. If you have not been by in a while, please drop in for a look see.

Link: <http://www.cafepress.com/ourdoghouse>

2. Do You Live With A Nervous Nellie?

Do You Live With A Nervous Nellie? Copyright © OurDogHouse

Stress is a killer for both humans and animals. Many times we can not change or eliminate the cause of the stress, such as a thunder storm, for example. We can however, help change our pet's behavior by utilizing what is called an Anxiety Wrap.

The Anxiety Wrap was developed by two Tellington Touch Practitioners, Susan Sharpe and Kimberly Ring.

The Anxiety Wrap is a holistic method which can help aid in modifying the pet's behavior in a stressful situation. In fact, in many cases the wrap has been found to be helpful even in training, nail cutting, barking or socialization settings just to name a few.

By basic design, the Anxiety Wrap uses what is termed "Maintained Pressure" which helps calm sensory receptors through the body.

The sensory receptors role is to report feedback to the brain from organs, muscles, joints, connective tissue, eyes, ears and nose. After gathering all this incoming data, the brain then interprets and activates the body into action. In fact, if your pet is prone to such behavior, they may exhibit stress even if there is no danger to them at all. In cases such as these, the pet's sympathetic nervous system takes over control.

The Anxiety Wrap maintains pressure to calm the pet by causing a decline in sensitivity at the receptor level.

For more information about the Anxiety Wrap, click on the link below.

Link: <http://www.anxietywrap.com/>

3. Dog-Gone Funny!

From The OurDogHouse Mail Box

We wanted to share a letter from a member of the OurDogHouse readership. Kimberly H. had all but given up on relationships. In fact, as she stated in her email to OurDogHouse, the only relationship she had was with her Doberman, Jack. Please read:

Hi my name is Kimberly. I was sick of dating and gave up! I love my 2-year old Doberman, Jack and happened to drop into your web site for a peek.

I had to have one of your t-shirts with the saying: The More Men I Meet, The More I Love My Doberman!

I had the shirt for about the week when I took Jack to the park for a run.

That is where I met Tom. He read the words on my shirt and let's just say he took it as a challenge.

Thanks, OurDogHouse! So far Tom has been wonderful to me and Jack.

Down on love or just tired of the dating thing? Express yourself with a bumper sticker, magnet or shirt with one of our new sayings, The More Men I Meet, The More I Love My Dog! or The More Women I Meet, The More I Love My Dog! Check for your breed at OurDogHouse. Breeds are still being added so please check back if you don't see yours.

Link: <http://www.cafepress.com/ourdoghouse>

4. Dog-Gone Helpful Link

Helpful Pet Link

Did you know only one in every seven veterinary hospitals have been accredited and meet strict standards of the AAHA?