1. The Heat is On

Ah, springtime and along with it comes the desire to hit the road and heat! Yes, the heat is on once again as spring moves closer to summer. Don't forget your pets are very susceptible to heat stress.

While the furkids love to go for rides in the car, we need to remember that even on the mildest of summer days the interior of a closed car can turn into an inferno for them in less than 10 minutes. It is estimated that a car, even with a window cracked, can reach temperatures of up to 160 degrees.

While spring and summertime travel can be great family fun for all, make sure your pets are not left unattended in the car.
